

Saks & Company

Pennsylvania Avenue and Seventh Street.

There is No Better Clothing Made Than the "Saks" Clothing.

The most critical will concede that. The selection of patterns is surely not limited. We have a much larger stock than you find in any two stores. We have a discriminating selection in plain Blue and Black Serge, Plain Black Thibet, Black and Blue Cheviots, Fancy Cassimeres, Fancy Worsteds, in single and double breasted.

Prices range from $10.00 to $35.00.

For $12.50

We show the best Blue and Black Serges. The most reliable kind. The absolutely true kind, in single and double breasted. If you are seeking a high standard of satisfaction in a Serge, this Suit at this price provides it, and by buying it you are studying economy, as others could not sell you this suit for less than $15.00.

2 Special Offerings of Boys' Suits Way Under Prices.

Your idea of satisfaction will more than be met.

These Offerings Are for Tomorrow:

Boys' Knee Pants Suits, Worth $3.00 - - - $1.95

In Double Breasted and Norfolk, plain Blue and Fancy, well made and trimmed. Sizes 6 to 16 years.

Special sale of Children's Novelty Suits--about 75 Suits--in plain Blue and Black and Fancy Mixtures. 1, 2 or 3 of a kind of our $3.50, $5.00, $6.00 and $7.50 Suits. Broken sizes.

Lot 1. Those that have sold at $3.50 and $4.50--$1.25

Lot 2. Those that were $5.00, $6.00 and $7.50--$2.25

Boys' Wash Suits.

We show a line of Extreme Novelties and all the Staples in BOYS' WASH SUITS. The most careful workmanship has been put in every Suit, in each grade, no matter what the price is. The styles are exclusive. The best produced. As an introduction we shall offer the following leader:

Regular Sailor and Russian Blouse Styles, plain white and fancy patterns, soutache and braid trimmed. Sailors are in sizes 3 to 12. Russian Blouses are in sizes 2½ to 7, with Bloomer Trousers.

Introductory Price, $1.50.

American League Balls, Sold Everywhere for $1.25.

Genuine American League Base Balls, regulation professional size and weight. We are bound to be lowest in price. Only one to a customer.

Special for Tomorrow, 90c.

Hammocks Worth $2.50.

Full-size fancy corded Hammocks, fast colors, with deep valance, pillow and spreader, with hooks for swinging.

Special for Tomorrow, $1.69.

Tennis Rackets

Actually Worth $2.50.

High-grade Tennis Rackets, strung with good quality of gut; proper weight and balance and size.

Special for Tomorrow, $1.69.

Our special COMBINATION FILM AND PLATE CAMERA, double plate holder, 4x5, fine lens and shutter. Listed at $8.00.

Special for Tomorrow, $3.25.

FIGHTING METHODISTS

DEBATES WHO FURNISH FUN FOR THE DELEGATES

First Address by a Woman Delegate Made by Mrs. Nichols of Nebraska.

Special Correspondence of The Evening Star.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., May 18, 1904.

The Los Angeles Express is responsible for the following: "Just as the brethren and sisters of the Methodist conference were about to start in on the election of bishops the Daily Christian Advocate, with thoughtful appropriateness, printed the following pungent quatrain, which appeared in this morning's issue:

When all the world is peaceful
And things are going right,
Some folks will not be happy
Till they start another fight.

"While the verse is unsigned, we are violating no confidence in announcing the author as that brilliant debater, Brother J. M. Binny."

This is but a specimen of the constant attempts of the reporters out here to impress the public with the fact that, led by the veteran editor of the New York Christian Advocate, the great "fighting" debaters, of the Methodist Church are gathered here in great numbers and are sustaining the reputation of these "extemporaneous" churchmen for tremendous powers of oratory. The other day they represented a great conflict, personal and almost bitter, as having occurred between those massive rivals, T. B. Neasey and J. M. Binny, and other most vindictive one as having taken place between Professor Terry of the Northwestern University and Dr. Munhall, the evangelist. Philadelphia, the question of the higher criticism and the heresies of the schools of the church. Unless the latter be really an exception, the reporters hardly knew that these reverend gentlemen in this great council first knock each other out and then presently join in amens and hallelujahs in some good class meeting.

There do seem to be some hot rounds. Even the laymen and preachers are getting mixed and pumping. The debaters here, but they ride joyfully in the same car soon afterward. Senator McClelland of New York, former democratic senator, a statesman, a wit with Dr. Buckley today. The latter, in an exceedingly polite, but sarcastic, speech, intimated that the senator was not respectful to the presiding bishop. Senator McClelland soon got a chance to take him to task for his insinuation. He wanted "satisfaction," was always ready to meet the doctor in debate. He had to ride over a rule to pass after the offense had been committed before noting it, according even to the senator's claim. He had to ride over his medicine; the theologian had scored it over the politician. These clashes, however, are evidently a delight also to the immense throngs that occupy the galleries at Hazard's Pavilion. These find much to thank the doctor in question for in giving them amusement. They seem to eagerly await his sarcasms, hoping that his victims will scream, at which they always evidence delight. They almost yelled for joy today, however, when a slim young colored delegate got the laugh on Dr. Buckley by referring to him several times as "my Brother Buck." There were no doubt that if the New York leader were not here nine-tenths of the jam of the present convocation would be wanting. He certainly relieves the tension of the great occasion.

Election of Bishops.

There was a great scene in the conference today after the election of Dr. Joseph F. Berry, the popular editor of the Express Herald, as bishop. Eight men were to be chosen. The vote had been taken and canvassed, and the conference was in special afternoon session to hear the result of the ballot. It was announced that out of 730 votes Dr. Berry had received 531, and was therefore elected. The election was a great and spontaneous ovation took place. Clapping of hands and waving of handkerchiefs. On motion, two of the active bishops were sent below to conduct the bishop-elect to the platform. The chautauqua salute was almost universal as he ascended the platform to his new sphere.

By the bye, it was gladly noted by his many friends here that Dr. Luther B. Wilson, so well known as being under the national capital as presiding elder and pastor of several churches there, received on the first ballot the splendid number of 172 votes. His friends are hoping that he will fill the high office. The telegraph has already probably told the world that he was elected. At this writing, been taken to the hotel, but not yet been announced. On Thursday, the entire eighth vacancies in the board of bishops will be filled. There was a special session of prayer this morning for divine direction in the important matter.

The name of Mrs. M. D. Nicholl of Nebraska will go down into history as that of the first woman to ascend the rostrum of a Methodist general conference to present a set of resolutions for adoption and make a formal speech in their support. Mrs. Nicholl is of medium size, was simply well dressed and has a graceful movement. She has a pleasant and thoroughly intelligent face, though her hair is somewhat gray and she has a modesty that is complete confidence. A round of applause greeted her recognition by the chair and her ascent to the place of speaking. She spoke clearly and was heard by most in the house, a profound silence ensuing at the beginning of her utterances. Her resolutions related to a more specific training in reverence for the restrictions of law as necessary for both church life and citizenship. Her address was a good one and was appreciatively received. By a unanimous vote resolutions were passed and she descended from the rostrum amid renewed applause. The female delegates who had preceded themselves admirably up to the present time. They are evidently a set of level-headed sisters and have honored their principles and newly acquired knowledge. They have been elected in favor of the appointment by the bishops of a commission with power to consolidate the look concerns, should they deem it best; also report by the committee on the itinerancy in favor of a restoration of the time limit to four years by a minority, recommending that no change be made. A great deal of work will doubtless occur when they are taken up.

The committee on the greater subjects of legislation, so well known as having come before the body, have known and have largely reported their conclusions. With the elections progressing and these reports up for consideration, the delegates rapid progress will be made so that no difficulty is anticipated in adjourning at the date today agreed upon, Monday, May 30.

Family Linen as Collateral.

From the Philadelphia Eagle.

A New York pawnbroker recently told me of a scheme resorted to by many washerwomen which may be of interest to those housewives who have noticed that their finer garments and household linens are slow in getting home from the wash. He says that the washerwomen make a regular practice of taking money on their patrons' better classes. "For example," said he, "indicating a large package neatly done up, 'that contains some very fine garments and a lot of household linen. The whole is worth perhaps $40. At any rate, I will take $20 on your account, and the washerwoman takes the things home with her, washes them at once, and instead of re- turning them to their owner, brings them home and gets money out of it. She keeps for at least a week, and sometimes much longer. By the time she has to take them back for delivery she has another lot which she can bring here in its place, thus she keeps the money indefinitely. A washerwoman with a large number of such patrons can keep $200 or $300 in the air all the time and still get the goods back in time to satisfy those people who have sufficiently large reserve stock on hand."

Noising It About.

From the Philadelphia Press.

Gasaway—"He's actually engaged to Miss Roxley, but he wants to keep it secret."

Harkaway—"I should think if he were really engaged to her he'd want everybody to know it right away. How do you know he's sure to keep it secret?"

Gasaway—"He told me."

Harkaway—"Ah! that explains it. He's pretty foxy."

REGISTER A COMPLAINT

CITIZENS OF ECKINGTON OBJECT TO DIRTY STREETS.

Thoroughfares Said to Have Been Covered With Mud--Lack of Police Protection.

From the discussion which was precipitated by Mr. Barton A. Bean, and participated in by nearly every member of the association, it appears that several warehouses in the immediate vicinity of Eckington place in the immediate vicinity of the new union station improvements. Steam shovels are said to be operating, and the dirt thus excavated is placed in wagons and carted to the street. It is claimed that, due to the rather uneven surface of the street, a goodly percentage of the dirt is spilled on the roadway, so as to give the appearance of a country thoroughfare. After the recent rains the roadway was a sea of mud, and residents coming into town looked as if they had come across lots from somewhere out in the back woods.

This alleged condition was called to the attention of the commissioners, who it was claimed, admonished the contractor and let it go at that. Finally, after three months of worrying, an order was obtained compelling the contractor to scrape the street. This he did, but according to Mr. Herman E. Blau and Mr. Bean within an hour after the street was covered with dirt to the thickness of one inch.

Other speeches brought out the fact that the law had been looked into, and steps taken to have the contractor before the court. It was said that this was done, that several witnesses, members of the citizens' association were summoned, and after waiting for some time, the court decided to forfeit a collateral of $3. This was more than the indignant citizens could stand for, and consequently at midnight last night, Mr. S. C. Kemm introduced a resolution calling upon the District Commissioners to enforce the laws.

Contrast With Northwest Section.

Mr. John Gaghan said that in certain portions of the northwest section of the city it was necessary to haul dirt over the roadways in the same manner as from Eckington place, but that in the northwest section the dirt was kept constantly employed by the street cleaners, who scraped the dirt together as fast as it dropped from the wagons, and when a pile had accumulated the next wagon was stopped and the dirt was hauled off. By this scheme the streets in the northwest were kept clean, but of course, the citizens of the northeast could not expect such consideration, according to Mr. Gaghan.

Two other streets are afflicted similarly to Randolph, namely 3d and R streets. The resolution included both these thoroughfares, and the citizens of the northeast could not expect such consideration, according to Mr. Gaghan.

Lack of Police Protection.

Another matter which occupied the attention of the association was the alleged lack of police protection afforded the public parking at the intersection of Lincoln avenue, Quincy and North Capitol streets. Through the persistent efforts of the association the parking was inclosed with a fence, the gates being kept open. The gates were handsomely painted, adding greatly to the artistic beauty of the vicinity. No sooner had this fence been completed, however, according to the citizens' association, every character and description congregated there, and used the chains for public ground, and tight-rope walking and other playful and circus-like stunts. The result was that most of the paint had disappeared. An appeal was made to a policeman on the beat, who claimed he had no jurisdiction in the premises. The citizens' association in the immediate supervision of the superintendent of public buildings and grounds, Col. J. H. Sylvester, who had been in the premises, and the meeting was brought to the attention of Lieut. Swindell. In charge of that precinct, steps would be taken to enforce the law. The secretary was instructed to communicate with Lieut. Swindell.

Three new members were admitted to the association--Mr. Paul E. Stege, Mr. John T. Connors and Mr. Louis R. R. Howard. Mr. Howard, chairman of the committee on street railways, reported that he had been successful in securing the removal of the street car tracks from the intersection of Lincoln avenue and New York avenue. He added that free transfers would be issued to and from the intersection of Lincoln avenue and Washington Railway and Electric Company.

Members Present.

A motion was adopted that the association adjourn after its next meeting until the fourth Monday in September. The following members were present last night: H. E. Blair, T. H. Melton, S. F. Birthright, A. M. Elwell, M. A. Leese, Chas. F. Trigner, Bernard Waters, James J. Connors, John Gaghan, J. D. Yockley, T. A. Clark, W. F. Prater, Washington T. A. Clark, W. W. Jordan, Geo. Lippert, W. A. Taylor, Solon C. Kemm, James A. Connor, B. A. Benson, H. Sylvester, Wm. S. Odell, James B. Robinson, William G. Henderson and A. O. Tingley.

WHERE GUESTS MAY GO HUNGRY

At "Novel" Luncheon You Are Expected to Do Some Guessing.

From the London Mail.

As nine out of ten women are inveterate readers of fiction, the latest idea in luncheon parties is sure to attract every hostess who is in search of some novel entertainment that will please her guests.

Invitations to a luncheon party for twenty guests, who must perforce be well versed in modern fiction are sent out by the up-to-date hostess. The invitation cards bear the picture of a closed book, and the words simply intimate that Mrs. Blank desires the presence of Miss Dash to a "novel" luncheon. On the arrival of the guests in the dining room it is seen that ten round tables are arranged round the room, and each table has a different scheme of decoration. In fact, every table is designed to carry out the representation of a well-known novel, and before the guests are allowed to be seated the names of the ten works of fiction must be guessed. Prizes are, of course, awarded to the quickest guesser, and the winning guest is allowed to partake of luncheon before their friends. The favorite novel, "The Four Feathers," is one that lends itself to a very effective scheme of decoration. When possible the table is supplied by the menu with a decoration in the center. When possible the table is supplied by the menu with a decoration in the center.

Barrie's "Little White Bird" is a story that can be graphically carried out in a "novel" luncheon, and "Tribby" is still another celebrated work of fiction that lends itself as easy to arrange and easy to guess. Under Two Fingers makes quite an artistic table with its setting of exotic flowers surmounted by the two flags, and "A Japanese Marriage" can also be pictorially represented.

Some Study Necessary.

From the Philadelphia Press.

"I ain't got no doubt," said Mr. Hieker, "but what I kin git that there job as consul at that place in England. I'd be 'Oh, yes," replied Peppery, "if you can learn to speak the language."

Relative to Wedding Gifts

7th & D. 7th & D.

Here Are Ideas Worthy of Thought at

R. Harris & Co.

The newest and most comprehensive assortment of Diamonds, Silverware, Cut Glass, Bric-a-Brac, Art Ware and Clocks ever shown south of New York.

There's not a store in the city that can equal or show you the unlimited stock as displayed in each department of our magnificent sales rooms.

Every counter, every shelf, contains ideas that make the most appropriate Wedding Presents. Combined with our great buying facilities (purchasing for two stores, Washington and Norfolk) there's that great incentive we place before you: price lowness without lessening the quality of the articles sold.

We sell Diamond Pendants from $10 to $1,000.

We sell Solid Silverware, single pieces, from $1 to $50.

We sell Solid Silverware Tea Sets from $100 to $750.

We sell Solid Silverware in oak chests from $25 to $500.

We sell Cut Glass of finest quality, pieces from $25 to $500.

We sell Art Pieces in Bric-a-Brac from $1.50 to $50.

We sell Clocks from $1.50 to $100.

We sell Silverplated Ware from $1 to $25.

We sell Silverplated Tea Sets from $10 to $50.

ANTIDOTE FOR CARBOLIC ACID.

An Englishman Has Tried Turpentine With Success.

From the London News.

A remarkable discovery has apparently been made by a Dublin veterinary surgeon named Allen, who has prepared an antidote for carbolic acid poisoning.

Some time ago his attention was drawn to two horses which were evidently suffering from poisoning. On examining one he noticed that the mucous surface of the mouth was blanched, and that the animal was staggering. There was a general twitching of the muscles, the eyes were staring, and the animal was rapidly assuming a comatose condition. Mr. Allen asked for some oil, infused for preference, if not any kind of oil that was handy. Some was brought, and about two winglasses full administered to one of the animals, the effect being, that the words of the old proverb, "miraculous," for the first time he then noticed that the "oil" which had been given to the horse was the ordinary turpentine of commerce. The animal recovered, the result that he gave the second horse a dose, although at that time the animal was staggering, and the words of the old proverb, "miraculous," for the first time he then noticed that the "oil" which had been given to the horse was the ordinary turpentine of commerce. The animal recovered, the result that he gave the second horse a dose, although at that time the animal was staggering, and the words of the old proverb, "miraculous," for the first time he then noticed that the "oil" which had been given to the horse was the ordinary turpentine of commerce. The animal recovered, the result that he gave the second horse a dose, although at that time the animal was staggering, and the words of the old proverb, "miraculous," for the first time he then noticed that the "oil" which had been given to the horse was the ordinary turpentine of commerce. The animal recovered, the result that he gave the second horse a dose, although at that time the animal was staggering, and the words of the old proverb, "miraculous," for the first time he then noticed that the "oil" which had been given to the horse was the ordinary turpentine of commerce. The animal recovered, the result that he gave the second horse a dose, although at that time the animal was staggering, and the words of the old proverb, "miraculous," for the first time he then noticed that the "oil" which had been given to the horse was the ordinary turpentine of commerce. The animal recovered, the result that he gave the second horse a dose, although at that time the animal was staggering, and the words of the old proverb, "miraculous," for the first time he then noticed that the "oil" which had been given to the horse was the ordinary turpentine of commerce. The animal recovered, the result that he gave the second horse a dose, although at that time the animal was staggering, and the words of the old proverb, "miraculous," for the first time he then noticed that the "oil" which had been given to the horse was the ordinary turpentine of commerce. The animal recovered, the result that he gave the second horse a dose, although at that time the animal was staggering, and the words of the old proverb, "miraculous," for the first time he then noticed that the "oil" which had been given to the horse was the ordinary turpentine of commerce. The animal recovered, the result that he gave the second horse a dose, although at that time the animal was staggering, and the words of the old proverb, "miraculous," for the first time he then noticed that the "oil" which had been given to the horse was the ordinary turpentine of commerce. The animal recovered, the result that he gave the second horse a dose, although at that time the animal was staggering, and the words of the old proverb, "miraculous," for the first time he then noticed that the "oil" which had been given to the horse was the ordinary turpentine of commerce. The animal recovered, the result that he gave the second horse a dose, although at that time the animal was staggering, and the words of the old proverb, "miraculous," for the first time he then noticed that the "oil" which had been given to the horse was the ordinary turpentine of commerce. The animal recovered, the result that he gave the second horse a dose, although at that time the animal was staggering, and the words of the old proverb, "miraculous," for the first time he then noticed that the "oil" which had been given to the horse was the ordinary turpentine of commerce. The animal recovered, the result that he gave the second horse a dose, although at that time the animal was staggering, and the words of the old proverb, "miraculous," for the first time he then noticed that the "oil" which had been given to the horse was the ordinary turpentine of commerce. The animal recovered, the result that he gave the second horse a dose, although at that time the animal was staggering, and the words of the old proverb, "miraculous," for the first time he then noticed that the "oil" which had been given to the horse was the ordinary turpentine of commerce. The animal recovered, the result that he gave the second horse a dose, although at that time the animal was staggering, and the words of the old proverb, "miraculous," for the first time he then noticed that the "oil" which had been given to the horse was the ordinary turpentine of commerce. The animal recovered, the result that he gave the second horse a dose, although at that time the animal was staggering, and the words of the old proverb, "miraculous," for the first time he then noticed that the "oil" which had been given to the horse was the ordinary turpentine of commerce. The animal recovered, the result that he gave the second horse a dose, although at that time the animal was staggering, and the words of the old proverb, "miraculous," for the first time he then noticed that the "oil" which had been given to the horse was the ordinary turpentine of commerce. The animal recovered, the result that he gave the second horse a dose, although at that time the animal was staggering, and the words of the old proverb, "miraculous," for the first time he then noticed that the "oil" which had been given to the horse was the ordinary turpentine of commerce. The animal recovered, the result that he gave the second horse a dose, although at that time the animal was staggering, and the words of the old proverb, "miraculous," for the first time he then noticed that the "oil" which had been given to the horse was the ordinary turpentine of commerce. The animal recovered, the result that he gave the second horse a dose, although at that time the animal was staggering, and the words of the old proverb, "miraculous," for the first time he then noticed that the "oil" which had been given to the horse was the ordinary turpentine of commerce. The animal recovered, the result that he gave the second horse a dose, although at that time the animal was staggering, and the words of the old proverb, "miraculous," for the first time he then noticed that the "oil" which had been given to the horse was the ordinary turpentine of commerce. The animal recovered, the result that he gave the second horse a dose, although at that time the animal was staggering, and the words of the old proverb, "miraculous," for the first time he then noticed that the "oil" which had been given to the horse was the ordinary turpentine of commerce. The animal recovered, the result that he gave the second horse a dose, although at that time the animal was staggering, and the words of the old proverb, "miraculous," for the first time he then noticed that the "oil" which had been given to the horse was the ordinary turpentine of commerce. The animal recovered, the result that he gave the second horse a dose, although at that time the animal was staggering, and the words of the old proverb, "miraculous," for the first time he then noticed that the "oil" which had been given to the horse was the ordinary turpentine of commerce. The animal recovered, the result that he gave the second horse a dose, although at that time the animal was staggering, and the words of the old proverb, "miraculous," for the first time he then noticed that the "oil" which had been given to the horse was the ordinary turpentine of commerce. The animal recovered, the result that he gave the second horse a dose, although at that time the animal was staggering, and the words of the old proverb, "miraculous," for the first time he then noticed that the "oil" which had been given to the horse was the ordinary turpentine of commerce. The animal recovered, the result that he gave the second horse a dose, although at that time the animal was staggering, and the words of the old proverb, "miraculous," for the first time he then noticed that the "oil" which had been given to the horse was the ordinary turpentine of commerce. The animal recovered, the result that he gave the second horse a dose, although at that time the animal was staggering, and the words of the old proverb, "miraculous," for the first time he then noticed that the "oil" which had been given to the horse was the ordinary turpentine of commerce. The animal recovered, the result that he gave the second horse a dose, although at that time the animal was staggering, and the words of the old proverb, "miraculous," for the first time he then noticed that the "oil" which had been given to the horse was the ordinary turpentine of commerce. The animal recovered, the result that he gave the second horse a dose, although at that time the animal was staggering, and the words of the old proverb, "miraculous," for the first time he then noticed that the "oil" which had been given to the horse was the ordinary turpentine of commerce. The animal recovered, the result that he gave the second horse a dose, although at that time the animal was staggering, and the words of the old proverb, "miraculous," for the first time he then noticed that the "oil" which had been given to the horse was the ordinary turpentine of commerce. The animal recovered, the result that he gave the second horse a dose, although at that time the animal was staggering, and the words of the old proverb, "miraculous," for the first time he then noticed that the "oil" which had been given to the horse was the ordinary turpentine of commerce. The animal recovered, the result that he gave the second horse a dose, although at that time the animal was staggering, and the words of the old proverb, "miraculous," for the first time he then noticed that the "oil" which had been given to the horse was the ordinary turpentine of commerce. The animal recovered, the result that he gave the second horse a dose, although at that time the animal was staggering, and the words of the old proverb, "miraculous," for the first time he then noticed that the "oil" which had been given to the horse was the ordinary turpentine of commerce. The animal recovered, the result that he gave the second horse a dose, although at that time the animal was staggering, and the words of the old proverb, "miraculous," for the first time he then noticed that the "oil" which had been given to the horse was the ordinary turpentine of commerce. The animal recovered, the result that he gave the second horse a dose, although at that time the animal was staggering, and the words of the old proverb, "miraculous," for the first time he then noticed that the "oil" which had been given to the horse was the ordinary turpentine of commerce. The animal recovered, the result that he gave the second horse a dose, although at that time the animal was staggering, and the words of the old proverb, "miraculous," for the first time he then noticed that the "oil" which had been given to the horse was the ordinary turpentine of commerce. The animal recovered, the result that he gave the second horse a dose, although at that time the animal was staggering, and the words of the old proverb, "miraculous," for the first time he then noticed that the "oil" which had been given to the horse was the ordinary turpentine of commerce. The animal recovered, the result that he gave the second horse a dose, although at that time the animal was staggering, and the words of the old proverb, "miraculous," for the first time he then noticed that the "oil" which had been given to the horse was the ordinary turpentine of commerce. The animal recovered, the result that he gave the second horse a dose, although at that time the animal was staggering, and the words of the old proverb, "miraculous," for the first time he then noticed that the "oil" which had been given to the horse was the ordinary turpentine of commerce. The animal recovered, the result that he gave the second horse a dose, although at that time the animal was staggering, and the words of the old proverb, "miraculous," for the first time he then noticed that the "oil" which had been given to the horse was the ordinary turpentine of commerce. The animal recovered, the result that he gave the second horse a dose, although at that time the animal was staggering, and the words of the old proverb, "miraculous," for the first time he then noticed that the "oil" which had been given to the horse was the ordinary turpentine of commerce. The animal recovered, the result that he gave the second horse a dose, although at that time the animal was staggering, and the words of the old proverb, "miraculous," for the first time he then noticed that the "oil" which had been given to the horse was the ordinary turpentine of commerce. The animal recovered, the result that he gave the second horse a dose, although at that time the animal was staggering, and the words of the old proverb, "miraculous," for the first time he then noticed that the "oil" which had been given to the horse was the ordinary turpentine of commerce. The animal recovered, the result that he gave the second horse a dose, although at that time the animal was staggering, and the words of the old proverb, "miraculous," for the first time he then noticed that the "oil" which had been given to the horse was the ordinary turpentine of commerce. The animal recovered, the result that he gave the second horse a dose, although at that time the animal was staggering, and the words of the old proverb, "miraculous," for the first time he then noticed that the "oil" which had been given to the horse was the ordinary turpentine of commerce. The animal recovered, the result that he gave the second horse a dose, although at that time the animal was staggering, and the words of the old proverb, "miraculous," for the first time he then noticed that the "oil" which had been given to the horse was the ordinary turpentine of commerce. The animal recovered, the result that he gave the second horse a dose, although at that time the animal was staggering, and the words of the old proverb, "miraculous," for the first time he then noticed that the "oil" which had been given to the horse was the ordinary turpentine of commerce. The animal recovered, the result that he gave the second horse a dose, although at that time the animal was staggering, and the words of the old proverb, "miraculous," for the first time he then noticed that the "oil" which had been given to the horse was the ordinary turpentine of commerce. The animal recovered, the result that he gave the second horse a dose, although at that time the animal was staggering, and the words of the old proverb, "miraculous," for the first time he then noticed that the "oil" which had been given to the horse was the ordinary turpentine of commerce. The animal recovered, the result that he gave the second horse a dose, although at that time the animal was staggering, and the words of the old proverb, "miraculous," for the first time he then noticed that the "oil" which had been given to the horse was the ordinary turpentine of commerce. The animal recovered, the result that he gave the second horse a dose, although at that time the animal was staggering, and the words of the old proverb, "miraculous," for the first time he then noticed that the "oil" which had been given to the horse was the ordinary turpentine of commerce. The animal recovered, the result that he gave the second horse a dose, although at that time the animal was staggering, and the words of the old proverb, "miraculous," for the first time he then noticed that the "oil" which had been given to the horse was the ordinary turpentine of commerce. The animal recovered, the result that he gave the second horse a dose, although at that time the animal was staggering, and the words of the old proverb, "miraculous," for the first time he then noticed that the "oil" which had been given to the horse was the ordinary turpentine of commerce. The animal recovered, the result that he gave the second horse a dose, although at that time the animal was staggering, and the words of the old proverb, "miraculous," for the first time he then noticed that the "oil" which had been given to the horse was the ordinary turpentine of commerce. The animal recovered, the result that he gave the second horse a dose, although at that time the animal was staggering, and the words of the old proverb, "miraculous," for the first time he then noticed that the "oil" which had been given to the horse was the ordinary turpentine of commerce. The animal recovered, the result that he gave the second horse a dose, although at that time the animal was staggering, and the words of the old proverb, "miraculous," for the first time he then noticed that the "oil" which had been given to the horse was the ordinary turpentine of commerce. The animal recovered, the result that he gave the second horse a dose, although at that time the animal was staggering, and the words of the old proverb, "miraculous," for the first time he then noticed that the "oil" which had been given to the horse was the ordinary turpentine of commerce. The animal recovered, the result that he gave the second horse a dose, although at that time the animal was staggering, and the words of the old proverb, "miraculous," for the first time he then noticed that the "oil" which had been given to the horse was the ordinary turpentine of commerce. The animal recovered, the result that he gave the second horse a dose, although at that time the animal was staggering, and the words of the old proverb, "miraculous," for the first time he then noticed that the "oil" which had been given to the horse was the ordinary turpentine of commerce. The animal recovered, the result that he gave the second horse a dose, although at that time the animal was staggering, and the words of the old proverb, "miraculous," for the first time he then noticed that the "oil" which had been given to the horse was the ordinary turpentine of commerce. The animal recovered, the result that he gave the second horse a dose, although at that time the animal was staggering, and the words of the old proverb, "miraculous," for the first time he then noticed that the "oil" which had been given to the horse was the ordinary turpentine of commerce. The animal recovered, the result that he gave the second horse a dose, although at that time the animal was staggering, and the words of the old proverb, "miraculous," for the first time he then noticed that the "oil" which had been given to the horse was the ordinary turpentine of commerce. The animal recovered, the result that he gave the second horse a dose, although at that time the animal was staggering, and the words of the old proverb, "miraculous," for the first time he then noticed that the "oil" which had been given to the horse was the ordinary turpentine of commerce. The animal recovered, the result that he gave the second horse a dose, although at that time the animal was staggering, and the words of the old proverb, "miraculous," for the first time he then noticed that the "oil" which had been given to the horse was the ordinary turpentine of commerce. The animal recovered, the result that he gave the second horse a dose, although at that time the animal was staggering, and the words of the old proverb, "miraculous," for the first time he then noticed that the "oil" which had been given to the horse was the ordinary turpentine of commerce. The animal recovered, the result that he gave the second horse a dose, although at that time the animal was staggering, and the words of the old proverb, "miraculous," for the first time he then noticed that the "oil" which had been given to the horse was the ordinary turpentine of commerce. The animal recovered, the result that he gave the second horse a dose, although at that time the animal was staggering, and the words of the old proverb, "miraculous," for the first time he then noticed that the "oil" which had been given to the horse was the ordinary turpentine of commerce. The animal recovered, the result that he gave the second horse a dose, although at that time the animal was staggering, and the words of the old proverb, "miraculous," for the first time he then noticed that the "oil" which had been given to the horse was the ordinary turpentine of commerce. The animal recovered, the result that he gave the second horse a dose, although at that time the animal was staggering, and the words of the old proverb, "miraculous," for the first time he then noticed that the "oil" which had been given to the horse was the ordinary turpentine of commerce. The animal